SEAN F. McAVOY, CLERK

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
EASTERN DISTRICT OF WASHINGTON

JANE DOE,

Plaintiff,

v.

ELSON S FLOYD COLLEGE OF MEDICINE AT WASHINGTON
STATE UNIVERSITY,

Defendant.

No. 2:20-cv-00145-SMJ

ORDER GRANTING IN PART AND DENYING IN PART DEFENDANT'S MOTIONS FOR JUDGMENT ON THE
PLEADINGS AND PLAINTIFF'S
PARTIAL MOTION TO DISMISS

Before the Court is Defendant's First Motion for Judgment on the Pleadings, ECF No. 31, Defendant's Second Motion for Judgment on the Pleadings, ECF No. 41, and Plaintiff's Opposed Partial Motion to Dismiss Without Prejudice, ECF No. 74. Defendant seeks dismissal of Causes of Action One through Six, Eleven, and Thirteen through Twenty with prejudice. ECF Nos. 31, 41. Plaintiff asks this Court to dismiss Causes of Action Ten through Thirteen and Fifteen through Twenty without prejudice. ECF No. 74.

Plaintiff initially sued Defendant in the Spokane County Superior Court, alleging twenty causes of action, including six due process violations, two violations of her right to privacy, harassment, seven gender discrimination claims,

ORDER GRANTING IN PART AND DENYING IN PART DEFENDANT'S MOTIONS FOR JUDGMENT ON THE PLEADINGS AND PLAINTIFF'S
PARTIAL MOTION TO DISMISS – 1

1 three disability-rights violations, and the tort of outrage. ECF No. 2-2. Defendant 2 afterward removed the suit to federal court. ECF No. 2. This Court dismissed 3 Causes of Action Seven through Nine in a previous Order. ECF No. 51. The Court 4 is fully informed and grants in part and denies in part each pending motion.

5 PLAINTIFF’S ALLEGATIONS

6 Plaintiff enrolled in Defendant’s medical school in August 2017. ECF No. 2-7 2 at 3. During her studies, she began dating a fellow student, and the relationship 8 ended when it became abusive. Id. at 4. After the relationship ended, her former 9 partner became romantically involved with another student, one of Plaintiff’s close 10 friends. Id. But when her former partner began dating her friend, she “confronted 11 him about his indiscretions,” and he “screamed, swore, and flipped a coffee table at 12 her.” Id. She informed Washington State University (WSU) staff of the abuse, but 13 it did not take her concerns seriously. Id.

14 Separately, Plaintiff suffers from depression and PTSD, diagnoses which 15 relate to “an incredibly traumatic event” she witnessed while in Kenya on an 16 academic research trip. Id. She informed Assistant Director Lisa Burch-Windrem, 17 Defendant’s employee, of her disabilities at the beginning of her 2018 academic 18 year. Id. She later informed Burch-Windrem of AF’s abusive behavior; Burch-19 Windrem did not provide her with any resources for abuse victims nor any safety 20 plan. Id. at 5.

1 During this time, her former partner and his new girlfriend began fabricating 2 allegations against Plaintiff, and these allegations were taken seriously despite 3 Plaintiff having previously reported her former partner's abuse. Id. Her former 4 partner reported Plaintiff for harassing him over Defendant's messaging platform, 5 Slack, conduct which Plaintiff represents was her attempt to ask him to leave her 6 alone. Id. After her former partner reported this communication, WSU sanctioned 7 her for a lack of professionalism, but provided her no explanation, guidelines, or 8 definition of professionalism. Id. at 7.

9 Plaintiff raised concerns with Burch-Windrem and Dr. Dawn DeWitt that her 10 former partner had recruited students to follow her and report back to him, but that 11 they dismissed her allegations without investigation. Id. at 8. WSU sanctioned her 12 for violating a no-contact order, yet she had never signed a no-contact order, and 13 WSU refused to assign her to a new "small group" when she had been placed in a 14 small group that included her former partner's new girlfriend. Id. at 9. At one point, 15 Plaintiff contacted her former partner to ask him not to attend a student-planned ski 16 trip and he recorded the conversation without her consent. Id. at 11. Plaintiff 17 reported the unlawful recording to Student Affairs, though no action was taken. Id.

18 Plaintiff was not provided with sufficient evidence to defend herself against 19 allegations brought against her by her former partner's new girlfriend. Id. at 13.

1 Three of the five voting members of SEPAC<sup>1</sup> should have recused themselves 2 because they, respectively, (1) supervised her former partner's new girlfriend's 3 cohort, (2) served as a leader for the Art and Practice of Medicine small group in 4 which her former partner was a member, and (3) served as the faculty leader for a 5 student organization for which her former partner and his new girlfriend were 6 founding members and accompanied the two on a WSU-endorsed conference trip.
7 Id. at 14. A fourth, non-voting SEPAC member served improperly as a both an 8 advocate for Plaintiff and a non-voting SEPAC member. Id. at 16.

9 The appeals process from the SEPAC sanctions took four months and was 10 highly stressful, causing her to fail two exams. Id. at 17. Professors did not give her 11 the chance to remediate the exams she failed, in spite of WSU policy. Id.
12 Defendant's Office of Student Affairs, one hour before her exam, sent her an email 13 about a required meeting later that day intentionally, so that she would become too 14 anxious to pass the examination. Id. at 18.

15 Plaintiff and her counsel asked the WSU to stop sending her emails, but 16 Defendant continued to send her emails about courses and other matters. Id. at 19.
17 Finally, after she filed a tort claim with Defendant's office of risk management, 18

19 <sup>1</sup> Plaintiff does not define "SEPAC" in her Complaint. See ECF No. 2-2. But 20 Defendant notes in the First Motion for Judgment on the Pleadings that the acronym stands for the "Student Evaluation, Promotion and Awards Committee" of the medical school. ECF No. 31 at 11.

1 Burch-Windrem removed her from a group within Slack (a “Slack channel”) in a 2 way that notified other students of her removal. Id. at 20.

3 LEGAL STANDARD

4 A. Motions for Judgment on the Pleadings

5 Under Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 8(a)(2), a complaint must contain a 6 “short and plain statement of the claim showing that the pleader is entitled to relief.” 7 The complaint need not provide “detailed factual allegations,” but it “requires more 8 than labels and conclusions, and a formulaic recitation of the elements of a cause of 9 action will not do.” Bell Atl. Corp. v. Twombly, 550 U.S. 544, 555 (2007). Plaintiffs 10 must plead enough facts “to ‘state a claim to relief that is plausible on its face.’” 11 Ashcroft v. Iqbal, 556 U.S. 662, 678 (2009) (quoting Twombly, 550 U.S. at 570).
12 Though Iqbal announced the standard governing a Rule 12(b)(6) motion, the Ninth 13 Circuit has “said that Rule 12(c) is ‘functionally identical’ to Rule 12(b)(6) and that 14 ‘the same standard of review’ applies to motions brought under either rule.” U.S. ex 15 rel. Cafasso v. Gen. Dynamics C4 Sys., Inc., 637 F.3d 1047, 1054 n.4 (9th Cir.
16 2011).

17 “A claim has facial plausibility when the plaintiff pleads factual content that 18 allows the court to draw the reasonable inference that the defendant is liable for the 19 misconduct alleged.” Iqbal, 556 U.S. at 678. “The plausibility standard is not akin 20 to a ‘probability requirement,’ but it asks for more than a sheer possibility that a 1 defendant has acted unlawfully.” Id. (quoting Twombly, 550 U.S. at 556).

2 “[W]hether a complaint states a plausible claim for relief . . . [is] a context-specific 3 task that requires the reviewing court to draw on its judicial experience and common 4 sense.” Id. District courts must accept as true all factual allegations in the complaint 5 and construe the complaint, and resolve all doubts, in the light most favorable to the 6 plaintiff. See id.; see also McGlinchy v. Shell Chem. Co., 845 F.2d 802, 810 (9th 7 Cir. 1988).

8 B. Motions for Voluntary Dismissal

9 Under Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 41(a)(2), after a defendant has filed a 10 responsive pleading, a plaintiff may request that a court dismiss an action “on terms 11 that the court considers proper.” Unless the order states otherwise, a dismissal under 12 Rule 41(a)(2) is without prejudice.

13 DISCUSSION

14 A. Private Rights of Action

15 Defendant’s arguments for dismissing the state law causes of action largely 16 center on the assertion that Plaintiff has not alleged a basis for a private right of 17 action. See generally ECF Nos. 31, 41 (arguing the Court should dismiss Causes of 18 Action One through Six and Thirteen through Nineteen for this reason). In response, 19 Plaintiff states that she does not claim a private right of action is created by the 20 statutes, regulations, and constitutional provisions themselves, and argues that the

1 Washington Law Against Discrimination (WLAD), Wash. Rev. Code § 49.60.030, 2 creates a private right of action. See ECF Nos. 53; 58. But Plaintiff only refers to 3 WLAD in the “Jurisdiction and Venue” section and her Prayer for Relief. ECF No.
4 2-2 at 3, 34. Defendant argues that this does not give it adequate notice of the claims 5 against it. ECF No. 67 at 2.

6 More importantly, the Washington Law Against Discrimination does not 7 create private rights of action for each of the provisions under which Plaintiff brings 8 her claims (i.e., WLAD does not create a private cause of action under the 9 Washington State due process clause). Instead, WLAD creates a cause of action 10 under the statute itself, pursuant to which Plaintiff can raise her claims.

11 Plaintiff also makes a breach of implied contract argument that she asserts 12 should save her due process claims. ECF No. 58 at 3–7. It is unclear whether she is 13 arguing that the Court should construe these Causes of Action as causes of action 14 for breach of implied contract, or whether Defendant’s alleged breach of any 15 implied contract constitutes the property interest of which Plaintiff was deprived of 16 without due process. In any event, Plaintiff does not mention an implied contract in 17 her Complaint. See ECF No. 2-2.

18 Any implied contract does not create a due process private right of action.
19 Washington State does not have an equivalent of 19 U.S.C. § 1983, so there is no 20 private right of action for a state Due Process Clause claim. See Sys. Amusement

1 Inc. v. State, 500 P.2d 1253 (Wash. App. 1972) (corporations); Spurrell v. Bloch, 2 701 P.2d 529 (Wash. App. 1985) (individuals); Brock v. Wash. State Dep't of Corr., 3 No. C085167RBL, 2009 WL 3429096, at *9 (W.D. Wash. Oct. 20, 2009) 4 (“Washington courts have consistently rejected invitations to establish a cause of 5 action for damages based upon constitutional violations”); Stearns-Groseclose v.
6 Chelan Cnty. Sheriff's Dep't, No. CV-04-0312-RHW, 2006 WL 195788, at *18 n.5
7 (E.D. Wash. Jan. 17, 2006).

8       The Court thus dismisses those state law claims for which there is no private 9 right of action under the statute pursuant to which they are brought—Causes of 10 Action One through Six and Thirteen through Nineteen. But the Court will allow 11 Plaintiff to amend her Complaint to state causes of action under WLAD and implied 12 breach of contract. Even though the deadline for amendment has passed, allowing 13 Plaintiff to amend her complaint will not cause undue delay because it will not add 14 new parties who would need to be served and file responsive pleadings nor will it 15 substantially increase the amount of required discovery. Cf. ECF No. 51; see also 16 McHenry v. Renne, 84 F.3d 1172, 1178 (9th Cir. 1996) (affirming a dismissal with 17 prejudice when Plaintiff failed to provide a “short and plain statement” in their third 18 amended complaint but acknowledging that dismissal with prejudice “is a harsh 19 remedy,” so the court should consider “less drastic alternatives”).

B. Remaining Causes of Action

The Court dismisses Cause of Action Ten without prejudice because this is uncontested by the parties. ECF No. 76 at 2. The Court also dismisses Causes of Action Eleven and Twenty without prejudice because it is not clear that Plaintiff could not remedy any deficiencies through amendment.

1. Cause of Action Eleven

Defendant argues that Plaintiffs cause of action alleging violation of Title IX based on peer-on-peer harassment fails because Plaintiff affirmatively pleaded that she herself chose not to proceed with an investigation or notify student conduct officers. ECF No. 31 at 15–16.

Title IX protects from sex discrimination individuals in programs that receive federal funding. 20 U.S.C. § 1681(a). Although there is a private right of action, Cannon v. Univ. of Chi., 441 U.S. 677, 709 (1979), damages are only available in certain situations, such as if an institution’s “official policy” discriminates on the basis of sex, or if “an official who at a minimum has authority to address the alleged discrimination and to institute corrective measures on the recipient’s behalf has actual knowledge of discrimination in the recipient’s programs and fails adequately to respond.” Gebser v. Lago Vista Indep. Sch. Dist., 524 U.S. 274, 290 (1998).

A student-on-student harassment claim requires Plaintiff to establish, as a threshold matter, that Defendant received Federal financial assistance and that

1 Plaintiff experienced sex-based discrimination. Karasek v. Regents of the Univ. of 2 Cal., 956 F.3d 1093, 1105 n.1 (9th Cir. 2020). After that, Plaintiff must establish 3 five elements:

4 [1] the school must have exercised substantial control over both the harasser and the context in which the known harassment occurred.

5 [2] the plaintiff must have suffered harassment that is so severe, 6 pervasive, and objectively offensive that it can be said to deprive the plaintiff of access to the educational opportunities or benefits provided by the school.

7 [3] a school official with authority to address the alleged 8 discrimination and to institute corrective measures on the school's behalf must have had actual knowledge of the harassment.

9 [4] the school must have acted with deliberate indifference to the 10 harassment, such that the school's response to the harassment or lack thereof was clearly unreasonable in light of the known 11 circumstances. This is a fairly high standard—a negligent, lazy, or careless response will not suffice. Instead, the plaintiff must demonstrate that the school's actions amounted to an official decision not to remedy the discrimination.

12 [5] the school's deliberate indifference must have subjected the 13 plaintiff to harassment. Put differently, the school must have caused the plaintiff to undergo harassment or made the plaintiff liable or vulnerable to it.

14
 15 Id. at 1105 (internal citations and alterations omitted).

16 Defendant argues Plaintiff fails to state a claim as to the fourth element; that 17 the school acted with deliberate indifference. ECF No. 31 at 17. Absent an 18 unreasonable response, courts should not “second-guess” a school's decisions.
 19 Davis, 526 U.S. at 649. Defendant points to the fact that it provided her the option 20 to “present her concerns to the Office of Equal Opportunity in Pullman,” which

1 Plaintiff chose not to pursue. ECF No. 31 at 18 (citing ECF No. 2-2 at 15). And 2 Defendant argues that Plaintiff does not assert that she reported her abuser's 3 conduct to student conduct officers as she was told she could. ECF No. 2-2 at 11– 4 12. As alleged, Defendant argues that it was not any failure, or “an official decision 5 not to remedy the discrimination” by Defendant that prevented Plaintiff from relief 6 from her harassment. See Karasek, 956 F.3d at 1105; see also Gebser, 524 U.S. at 7 290. Instead, it asserts it was Plaintiff's lack of exercise of her options that prevented 8 the resolution—or at least, prevented Defendant the opportunity to reach a 9 resolution.

10 On the other hand, Plaintiff argues that Defendant's response to her reporting 11 the abuse “was a pointed attack.” ECF No. 58 at 9. She argues that the “few 12 measures [Defendant] did implement to protect Doe” were used “as a weapon 13 against her in future disciplinary proceedings.” Id. But Plaintiff does not support 14 this assertion with any factual examples. See id. She is likely referring to the 15 allegation in the Complaint that SEPAC later stated that she had violated a condition 16 of her probation by contacting her abuser. ECF No. 2-2 at 12.

17 Plaintiff also argues that even though Defendant told her she could contact a 18 student conduct officer, she was not told what that meant. See ECF No. 2-2 at 11– 19 12. Defendant also allegedly did not tell her that she could contact law enforcement 20 or that her abuser recording her was a crime. See ECF No. 2-2 at 8–9. Defendant

1 allegedly refused to remove her from a school group of which her abuser's new 2 girlfriend was also a member. ECF No. 2-2 at 9–10.

3 Finally, in her response, Plaintiff states that “[a]t no point in time has Plaintiff 4 indicated that Defendant is responsible for peer-on-peer violations” rather, that 5 “Defendant needs to be held liable for their gross mismanagement of a domestic 6 violence situation.” ECF No. 58 at 9. Defendant argues that that “mismanagement” 7 is not a viable Title IX theory of liability, and that Plaintiff has effectively conceded 8 this cause of action. ECF No. 70 at 9. It appears, though, that Plaintiff is merely 9 trying to convey, rather clumsily, that she is not arguing that Defendant caused the 10 abuse, rather that it knew about it and acted with deliberate indifference. See 11 Karasek, 956 F.3d at 1105.

12 Altogether, Plaintiff has alleged no facts that show “deliberate indifference” 13 to Plaintiff's abuse. Although Plaintiff may not be satisfied with the options 14 provided by Defendant, it did give her some. The Court therefore dismisses this 15 cause of action without prejudice.

16 2. Cause of Action Twenty – Tort of Outrage

17 Plaintiff also alleges the common law tort of outrage. ECF No. 2-2 at 33– 34.
18 Defendant argues that Plaintiff's allegations do not amount to “extreme and 19 outrageous conduct beyond all bounds of human decency. ECF No. 41 at 16.

1 Moreover, “[a]t worst, [Plaintiff’s allegations merely] reflect inaction, or that the 2 College simply did not believe her.” Id.

3 The tort of outrage requires Plaintiff to show: (1) extreme and outrageous 4 conduct; (2) intentional or reckless infliction of emotional distress; and (3) that 5 Plaintiff actually suffered severe emotional distress as a result. Kloepfel v. Bokor, 6 66 P.3d 630, 632 (Wash. 2003). Juries generally decide whether conduct is 7 “extreme and outrageous,” but courts act as gatekeepers. Christian v. Tohmeh, 366 8 P.3d 16, 30 (Wash. App. 2015), review denied, 377 P.3d 744 (Wash. 2016). “[M]ere 9 insults, indignities, threats, annoyances, petty oppressions, or other trivialities” do 10 not suffice. Kloepfel, 66 P.3d at 632. Instead, the defendant’s conduct must be “so 11 outrageous in character, so extreme in degree, as to go beyond all possible bounds 12 of decency, and to be regarded as atrocious, and utterly intolerable in a civilized 13 community.” Id. (emphasis omitted).

14 Courts have found that actions that are not public, egregious, or humiliating 15 is less likely to constitute outrageous conduct. See, e.g., Richards v. Healthcare Res.
16 Grp., Inc., 131 F. Supp 3d 1063, 1075 (E.D. Wash. 2015) (reasoning that conduct 17 was not extreme and outrageous where defendant allegedly forged plaintiff’s initials 18 on a performance improvement plan and then used the plan as a basis to fire 19 plaintiff); Dicomes v. State, 782 P.2d 1002 (Wash. 1989) (determining privately 20 discharging plaintiff and responding to media inquiries about her discharge did not

1 constitute extreme and outrageous conduct). But courts have adopted factors to 2 determine if conduct is sufficiently extreme and outrageous to result in liability 3 include:

4 (a) the position occupied by the defendant; (b) whether plaintiff was 5 peculiarly susceptible to emotional distress and if defendant knew this 6 fact; (c) whether defendant's conduct may have been privileged under 7 the circumstances; (d) the degree of emotional distress cause by a party 8 must be server as opposed to constituting mere annoyance, inconvenience or the embarrassment which normally occur in a confrontation of the parties; and, (e) the actor must be aware that there is a high probability that his conduct will cause severe emotional distress and he must proceed in a conscious disregard of it.

9 Birkliid v. The Boeing Co., 904 P.2d 278, 286 (Wash. 1995) (internal quotations 10 omitted). Plaintiff argues that she was “peculiarly susceptible,” and Defendant was 11 aware of her particular sensitivity. ECF No. 53 at 7–9.

12 Defendants argue that Plaintiff alleges she was placed on leave only after 13 professional conversations, investigations, letters, and appeals. ECF No. 41 at 18.
14 Defendant first placed Plaintiff on probation and then administrative leave and 15 heard “many” appeals. Id. It argues that does not rise to extreme and outrageous 16 conduct as a matter of law. Id. Plaintiff responds that her disabilities—anxiety, 17 depression, and PTSD—and her treatment for them were documented with 18 Defendant when it took its actions. ECF No. 53 at 8–9; see also ECF No. 2-2 at 4– 19 5. She had just left an abusive relationship and was forced to interact with her abuser 20 and his new partner at school, which Defendant allegedly knew. See ECF No. 2-2

1 at 4, 8–9. Plaintiff told several members of the college staff, including Burch-2 Windrem and Dr. Dewitt, “about how much of a struggle she was having 3 maintaining her equilibrium.” ECF No. 53 at 9; see also ECF No. 2-2 at 5, 8. Despite 4 its awareness of Plaintiff’s particular sensitivities, she argues, Defendant denied 5 every request for help to lower this stress.

6 Unlike in Richards and Dicomes, Plaintiff has alleged a particular sensitivity 7 based on her mental health diagnoses, as well as her experience in an abusive 8 relationship. ECF No. 2-2. She alleges that Defendant was aware of these 9 sensitivities. Id. Defendant allegedly denied Plaintiff’s requests for relief and help.
10 Id. Rather than inaction, those denials constitute affirmative actions that allegedly 11 caused Plaintiff severe emotional distress. And unlike in Richards and Dicomes, 12 which involved singular nefarious actions by employers, Defendant’s alleged 13 actions constituted an ongoing pattern of potentially distressing actions, such as the 14 handling of the student conduct appeals process, refusing to remove Plaintiff from 15 a group with her abuser’s new girlfriend, and frequently contacting Plaintiff. See 16 ECF No. 2-2. Finally, by publicly removing Plaintiff from the Slack channel could 17 constitute a public, egregious, and humiliating action, making Defendant’s conduct 18 more outrageous than in Richards. See ECF No. 2-2 at 20–21.

1 While Plaintiff's Complaint does not currently state a claim for tort of 2 outrage, an amendment might remedy that issue. So, the Court dismisses this cause 3 of action without prejudice.

4 Accordingly, IT IS HEREBY ORDERED:

5 1. Defendant's First Motion for Judgment on the Pleadings, ECF No. 31,
